UNEXPECTED DEATH COMES

MISS SUE FORNEY TAKEN BY PNEUMONIA WHILE ON VISIT

Mrs. Wm. Spangler Quickly Succumbs After an Operation in a Baltimore Hospital.

This town was shocked by two deaths last week, both in city hospitals and were unexpected.

MISS SUE FORNEY died on Wednesday in the Presbyterian hospital, Philadelphia from pneumonia. She had been on a visit to the city to relatives and going to an entertainment one evening had taken a heavy cold and was taken early to the hospital for treatment. She had passed the crisis and her many friends in this town hoped she was well on the way to recovery when news came of her death in one of those relapses that often happens in pneumonia. She was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John S. Forney, who lived on the Mummasburg road north of town for years. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, services being conducted by Rev. Dr. T. J. Barkley, interment in the Evergreen Cemetery. She is survived by a sister and a brother, Mrs. Harry C. Picking and David J. Forney both of this place.

MRS. MARY ANN SPANGLER wife of William Spangler of Baltimore Street died last Wednesday morning in the John's Hopkins Hospital Baltimore aged 65 years, 9 months and 23 days. She had been ailing of late but had not been confined to the house. On account of an obstruction in the bowel she went to the hospital and was operated on. This operation showed the necessity of a second operation, which her family were informed should take place as soon as she had recovered from the first operation, but it is believed death resulted from her inability to recover from the first operation. A most pathetic incident marked her death. Mr. Spangler had been to the hospital to see his wife, and there being no immediate indications of her nearness to the end of life, had returned home. Before any of the family had been notified of the turn for the worse death came. Then when the body was sent here, at the same time the body was carried into her home the city carrier delivered the last message she had sent, shortly before her death. It is thought that by reason of the outbreak in the hospital of diphtheria, all mail had been fumigated and that fact occasioned the delay of her letter reaching here. Mrs. Spangler was a Miss Harnish, and was born in Heidelberg township, York County. The family came to McKnightstown and for thirty years she has been living in this place with her husband, where her many kindness of heart and noble qualities had won her many friends. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, services conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. B. Baker of St. James Lutheran Church, with interment in Evergreen Cemetery. She is survived by her husband, one sister and two brothers. Mrs. Calvin Lower of McKnightstown, Reily S. Harnish of this place and Henry Harnish in the west.

HANSON W. PFEFFER died on last Thursday at his home on Baltimore Street aged 54 years. Death was due to the great white plague and Mr. Pfeffer faced the inevitable pluckily for weeks and months. He would not give up and last week was seen on the street, going about. He was an expert carpenter and for years had been the right hand man of Charles H. Comfort in the latter's planing mill. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, services being conducted by Rev. J. B. Baker, interment in Evergreen Cemetery. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Miss Edna Pfeffer at home. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Pfeffer of this place six sisters and three brotners, Mrs. Jacob Butt of Abilene, Kansas, Mrs. Charles Ziegler of Chicago, Mrs. J. Commission and Council Agree.

The Town Council met last Friday evening to take action on an agreement that had been reached between the War Department and the Gettysburg Battlefield Park Commissioners as to the alley in rear of lots on south side of East Middle Street, where it was proposed to carry said alley over East Confederate Avenue. The agreement had been effected through Congressman Lafean and was as follows:

"The proposition that two gates to conform with those erected by the Commission, be put on Confederate avenue opposite the suggested alley and in the space that has been left theref opening on East Confederate avenue; the Town Council to bear the expenses of the gates. The grading from the gates to the avenue, and the iron piping of the gutters as the other entrances are graded, with proper and uniform granite cap stones at each end. The Secretary of War to issue permission for the work, the expense of which is to be borne by the Town Council, and paid for upon the inspection and approval of the Commission by the Town Council. The Secretary of War to grant a permit as other permits are granted in relation to crossing United States property."

Ordinances were then introduced before Council to ordain alley in rear of lot on south side of East Middle street, from Stratton street eastward to the borough limits, and repealing the recent ordinances providing for such alleyway without crossing the Confederate Avenue and the proposed ordinances will come up for action of the Council at the regular meeting in April.

FEDERAL BUILDING FOR TOWN

PROVIDED FOR IN THE SUNDRY CIVIL BILL

The Bill Passed the U. S. House of Representatives Last Saturday—Bill in Senate Now.

The Federal Building for Gettysburg has been provided for in the Sundry Civil Bill and the chances of a defeat of this provision for the Gettysburg Federal building are practically so small as not worth consideration.

The Sundry Civil Bill was reported to the House on last Thursday and part of the one hundred and forty millions of dollars carried by the bill for many purposes of the government was about twenty one millions for buildings. Among the buildings provided are the following in the 20th Pennsylvania Congressional District, Gettysburg completing building $100,000, Hanover for a site and building $42,000 and York completing building now under construction $200,000.

When the bill was passed finally Saturday evening the public building items aggregating more than $21,000,000 were adopted without being read by the Clerk. Such items had been worked over for weeks and were known and agreed upon before bill was presented. The Senate will pass the Sundry Civil Bill before March 4th and while certain items of bill may make discussion, the outlook at present is that no time will be devoted to the portion providing for buildings and that when the Sundry Civil Bill becomes law before March 4th the appropriation for the Federal Building at Gettysburg will have been provided and to Congressman Lafean will belong the credit for having well taken care of his district in the matter of buildings.

The destruction of the buildings between the Compiler building and High Street were finished last week and the government site 153 feet on Baltimore Street by 142 on High Street is cleared for the government with the exception of the hauling away of the material. Last fall the Supervising architects' department gave notice that on March 1, 1911 they would give notice to occupiers to clear away all buildings and when the notice comes this or next week after the passage of the Sundry Civil bill, everything will be in readiness in this place to quickly comply with the notice.

The plans for the buildings have been approved and work is progressing on the floor plans. A set of plans was sent to Postmaster Beales recently, asking for his suggestions as to the floor space.

The building will be a two story building instead of a three story as spoken of at one time and will front ninety feet on Baltimore Street, and will be placed it is said twelve feet back of the building line and will run back seventy feet. Six great columns will be placed on the front of the building and Gettysburg is going to have a building in every way worthy of the town and its history. The post-office department will occupy the entire ground floor. The Gettysburg Battlefield Park Commission will occupy the entire second floor with the exception of one room for use of the Deputy revenue Collectorship.

It is said the plans will be completed at a very early date and that within six weeks or two months advertisement will be asked for bids and before summer the actual work of construction will have begun and the time for erection usually indicated for a building such as the one planned for this place is fourteen months, so that the building will have been completed in 1912 and be occupied by 1913 and the interesting historical accumulations of the Battlefield Commission be accessible to the public in the anniversary year.

Bids for St. James Church Opened

The bids for the buildings of St. James Lutheran Church were opened last week and at the Congregational meeting on Sunday morning Prof. H. Milton Roth reported the bids to the congregation as follows

William H. Johns, Gettysburg, $36,990.

Wm. R. Dougherty, Philadelphia $57,000.

J. L. Menough, York, $43,450.

D. S. Sollinberger, Harrisburg, $37,987 33.

James Porter, Carlisle $42,000.

Quigley Hafer, Chambersburg, $47,733 95.

Wm. J. Elliott, Coatesville, $42,791.

The two lowest bidders, Mr. Johns and Mr. Sollenberger were asked to make other bids after certain revisions to tower, etc. and the latter did not change his bid while Mr. Johns reduced his bid to $35,000.

The committee proposed to go over the plans with the architect, A. A. Ritcher of Lebanon this week and make other changes to further reduce cost if possible and present to the congregation next Sunday their results so that action be then taken.

CUPID'S COAL TRUCK

By JAMES FRANCIS DWYER

Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.

The car came to an abrupt stop, and the conductor stretched his neck in a reckless manner as he looked for the cause.

"Coal truck on the blink with a broken axle," he cried disgustedly, "an' now I got to chase through the snow to phone the 'mergency van." He walked through the car to acquaint the motorman of his heroic intention and, after buttoning his jacket, set off up the snow covered road in search of a telephone.

The motorman took the opportunity to stretch his legs by walking around the disabled vehicle. When he stepped from the car the two passengers sighed wearily and the man moved closer to his companion.

"Well, I'm glad that conductor has gone," he remarked. "He stared at us till my conscience suggested I had given him a bad coin."

The fur wrapped girl beside him laughed merrily.

"'Tis a habit of conductors," she murmured. "I have noticed them before."

"I will pardon him," said the man. "He is but mortal, and I am pleased to find that his mercenary occupation has not destroyed his love of the beautiful."

The girl smiled indulgently, but remained silent. Meanwhile the motorman had entered into a discussion with the truck driver as to the best method of removing the damaged vehicle.

"Letty!" The man's voice interrupted a day dream and the girl started.

"Do you know I am desperately in love?"

The big blue eyes surveyed him critically.

"No; I do not," she said emphatically. "When a man is in love he can never disguise the fact."

"You are thinking of calf love," he remarked, "the kind that bubbles over and spoils its owner's appetite, but solid, healthy man's love"—

"It is all the same," she interrupted; "concealment is impossible. Now, Mr. Dorrington is in love, and a child can detect the symptoms.

"Dorrington!" The man's voice expressed his surprise. "Do you mean old Dorrington?"

The slightest puckering round the corners of the little mouth showed where a smile tried hard to establish a footing.

"When Mr. Dorrington called yesterday," continued the girl, "I watched him closely while he was speaking to mother"—

"Pardon me!" The man's tone was masterful, and the girl stopped. "Is Dorrington—old Dorrington—in love with your mother?"

The smile made another valiant effort to disturb the serenity of the girl's face, but retired discomfited.

"I do not think so," she said quietly. "If he is, the feeling is not reciprocated, as mother always leaves me to entertain him when he calls."

The man winced.

"I am anxious about him"—he tried to hide the effect produced by her thrust—"Dorry is not young, you know, and love, like measles, plays the mischief with elderly people."

The hovering smile flashed triumphantly across the girl's blushing face.

"Seriously, Letty," her companion continued, "Dorrington is old; I remember him twenty-five years ago, when he chased me away from a pond near your mother's house. God bless my heart, girl"—his tone changed to one expressing blank astonishment—"I am getting old too!"

The girl turned, and the blue eyes looked carefully over the man's brown face, noting the length and depth of every wrinkle that marked it.

"You are getting old, Jack."

"I know it," he cried, "and here am I in a sidetracked car doing nothing, while time pursues me remorselessly."

Evidently thinking anything preferable to inaction, he started out to capture one of the little gloved hands of his companion, and after she had vainly tried to defeat his intentions he clasped it between his own two and seemed immensely pleased at the feat.

"Dear me," she sighed, "I wish that conductor would come back."

"He cannot shift us." The man was defiant, and the girl blushed as she noticed his restlessness.

"No, but he can stare at you," she cried irritably, "and your actions since he departed prove that the stare was effective."

"But, Letty," he said, "what a terrible thing it is to look back on thirty-five wasted years, thirty-five autumns, thirty-five springs and the same number of winters and summers, all barren and useless." He shuddered and moved closer.

"Oh, Jack," she murmured, "do look and see if he is coming."

He stood up, still holding the little hand, and carefully scanned the white road. "He is not coming!" he cried gleefully. "He will have to walk a mile—a mile there and a mile back."

"You have no pity!" exclaimed the girl. She made an attempt to release the imprisoned hand as she spoke, but the man's grip tightened. "How would you like it, sir, if you had to walk two miles in the snow because a silly old coal truck collapsed on the track?"

"It is not a silly old coal truck," said the man, dropping back into his seat. "It is a wonderful, glorious, rainbow tinted instrument of—of"—

"Don't say Providence," she interrupted.

"No; of Dan Cupid! Didn't I tell you, Letty, that I adore"—

"The coal truck," she interrupted again. "You certainly used enough adjectives to give one that impression."

"And I do!" he cried defiantly. "I adore the horses, the axle and every other part that helped toward the breaking down because—do you know why, Letty?"

"Because it made the poor conductor tramp two miles in the snow," she answered.

The man was annoyed.

"Confound the conductor!" he cried. "I wish he'd come back," she said. "If he does not return soon I will call upon the motorman. I suppose he is responsible for the safety of the passengers while his mate is away."

The mention of the motorman made her companion turn around to see where that person was stationed, and he was somewhat surprised to find that he had impressed two horses belonging to another truckman and, with the combined teams, was making a vigorous effort to pull the obstruction from the track. This strenuous proceeding alarmed the man, and he turned quickly to the girl.

"Letty, I want you to listen!" he cried. "This might be the only chance I will get to explain."

The noise outside increased.

"Go ahead!" screamed the driver, as the four horses strained and struggled. "Keep it up! Keep it up!"

"Letty!" The man seized both hands now and tried to turn her face toward him. "I want to tell you"—

"Use the whip!" yelled the driver. His shrill shriek ripped through the car and drowned the man's voice.

The girl turned toward the window, and the fur boa on her shoulders shook suspiciously. The man had a dim idea that she was laughing.

"Letty!" The man was desperate. "I—I love you."

A loud yell of triumph came from the driver, and a merry peal of laughter from the girl helped the echoes as they buzzed around the car. The noise was tremendous. The driver's yells were deafening, and the shouts of the motorman and the truckman told the man that the work of removing the obstruction was nearly finished. He took one hasty glance at the moving truck and, springing back, quickly seized the laughing girl in his arms.

"There!" he cried triumphantly as he kissed the blushing face. "And there! And there again!" And over the girl's muffled laughter and protests came a victorious cheer from the motorman and the two truck drivers, informing the two passengers that the truck was clear at last.

Three minutes afterward the conductor kicked the snow from his boots and gave the "Go ahead" signal to the elated motorman, and the car moved off. As they passed the disabled truck the man pointed to the name painted in red letters on its side, and the girl read, "John Love, Truckman."

"One of Dan Cupid's aliases," whispered her companion. And the blush on her face made the beauty loving conductor stare at her for the rest of the journey to the infinite delight of the man.

The Fife.

It is said by some that we owe the fife—"ear piercing," as Shakespeare calls it—to the Swiss, and Sir James Turner, who busied himself in writing on military matters, names it the "Allemaine whistle." In France it was employed at least as early as 1534, in which year it was ordered by Francis I. that each band of 1,000 men was to have four drums and two fifes.

A few years later in England we find "drommes and ffyffes" included in the muster of London citizens. Shakespeare refers to the musician, not the instrument, when he speaks in "The Merchant of Venice" of "the vile squealing of the wry necked fife." An old writer observes, indeed, that a "fyfe is a wry neckt musician, for he looks away from his instrument." About the reign of James II. the fife lost its popularity for a time. Sir James Turner observing, "With us any captain may keep a fifer in his company and maintain him, too, for no pay is allowed him, perhaps just as much as he deserveth."—Chambers' Journal.

Wanted Browning.

He was evidently a German, and his speech didn't belie the fact. He caught the attention of the librarian.

"Blease, I vant a book," he said.

"What book?" she asked.

"Boetry," he replied.

"Who is the author?"

He looked troubled.

"Blease, I haf forgot it," he said, "but his name begins mit 'P.'"

"Poe?" asked the obliging girl.

"Not Boe," he answered.

"Pope?"

"Not Bope."

His face brightened up.

"He is dot feller dot wrodt 'In a Paleony,'" he said.

"Why, that was Browning."

"Sure, Prowning," he repeated. "I couldn't remember, but I knew dot it commenced mit a 'P.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Cave Full of Bones.

In the Isle of Eigg, one of the Hebrides, is a cave into which one can hardly creep on hands and knees. Inside it widens enormously and runs down to the terrific depth of 250 feet. To this day the bottom is strewn thick with human bones, the relics of the whole clan of Macdonalds, over 200 in number, who were miserably suffocated by the Macleods from the island of Skye. This tragedy is supposed to have occurred in the thirteenth century.

Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.

The car came to an abrupt stop, and the conductor stretched his neck in a reckless manner as he looked for the cause.

"Coal truck on the blink with a broken axle," he cried disgustedly, "an' now I got to chase through the snow to phone the 'mergency van." He walked through the car to acquaint the motorman of his heroic intention and, after buttoning his jacket, set off up the snow covered road in search of a telephone.

The motorman took the opportunity to stretch his legs by walking around the disabled vehicle. When he stepped from the car the two passengers sighed wearily and the man moved closer to his companion.

"Well, I'm glad that conductor has gone," he remarked. "He stared at us till my conscience suggested I had given him a bad coin."

The fur wrapped girl beside him laughed merrily.

"'Tis a habit of conductors," she murmured. "I have noticed them before."

"I will pardon him," said the man. "He is but mortal, and I am pleased to find that his mercenary occupation has not destroyed his love of the beautiful."

The girl smiled indulgently, but remained silent. Meanwhile the motorman had entered into a discussion with the truck driver as to the best method of removing the damaged vehicle.

"Letty!" The man's voice interrupted a day dream and the girl started.

"Do you know I am desperately in love?"

The big blue eyes surveyed him critically.

"No; I do not," she said emphatically. "When a man is in love he can never disguise the fact."

"You are thinking of calf love," he remarked, "the kind that bubbles over and spoils its owner's appetite, but solid, healthy man's love"—

"It is all the same," she interrupted; "concealment is impossible. Now, Mr. Dorrington is in love, and a child can detect the symptoms.

"Dorrington!" The man's voice expressed his surprise. "Do you mean old Dorrington?"

The slightest puckering round the corners of the little mouth showed where a smile tried hard to establish a footing.

"When Mr. Dorrington called yesterday," continued the girl, "I watched him closely while he was speaking to mother"—

"Pardon me!" The man's tone was masterful, and the girl stopped. "Is Dorrington—old Dorrington—in love with your mother?"

The smile made another valiant effort to disturb the serenity of the girl's face, but retired discomfited.

"I do not think so," she said quietly. "If he is, the feeling is not reciprocated, as mother always leaves me to entertain him when he calls."

The man winced.

"I am anxious about him"—he tried to hide the effect produced by her thrust—"Dorry is not young, you know, and love, like measles, plays the mischief with elderly people."

The hovering smile flashed triumphantly across the girl's blushing face.

"Seriously, Letty," her companion continued, "Dorrington is old! I remember him twenty-five years ago, when he chased me away from a pond near your mother's house. God bless my heart, girl"—his tone changed to one expressing blank astonishment—"I am getting old too!"

The girl turned, and the blue eyes looked carefully over the man's brown face, noting the length and depth of every wrinkle that marked it.

"You are getting old, Jack."

"I know it," he cried, "and here am I in a sidetracked car doing nothing, while time pursues me remorselessly."

Evidently thinking anything preferable to inaction, he started out to capture one of the little gloved hands of his companion, and after she had vainly tried to defeat his intentions he clasped it between his own two and seemed immensely pleased at the feat.

"Dear me," she sighed, "I wish that conductor would come back."

"He cannot shift us!" The man was defiant, and the girl blushed as she noticed his restlessness.

"No, but he can stare at you," she cried irritably, "and your actions since he departed prove that the stare was effective."

"But, Letty," he said, "what a terrible thing it is to look back on thirty-five wasted years, thirty-five autumns, thirty-five springs and the same number of winters and summers, all barren and useless." He shuddered and moved closer.

"Oh, Jack," she murmured, "do look and see if he is coming."

He stood up, still holding the little hand, and carefully scanned the white road. "He is not coming!" he cried gleefully. "He will have to walk a mile—a mile there and a mile back."

"You have no pity!" exclaimed the girl. She made an attempt to release the imprisoned hand as she spoke, but the man's grip tightened. "How would you like it, sir, if you had to walk two miles in the snow because a silly old coal truck collapsed on the track?"

"It is not a silly old coal truck," said the man, dropping back into his seat. "It is a wonderful, glorious, rainbow tinted instrument of—of"—

"Don't say Providence," she interrupted.

"No; of Dan Cupid! Didn't I tell you, Letty, that I adore"—

"The coal truck," she interrupted again. "You certainly used enough adjectives to give one that impression."

"And I do!" he cried defiantly. "I adore the horses, the axle and every other part that helped toward the breaking down because—do you know why, Letty?"

"Because it made the poor conductor tramp two miles in the snow," she answered.

The man was annoyed.

"Confound the conductor!" he cried.

"I wish he'd come back," she said. "If he does not return soon I will call upon the motorman. I suppose he is responsible for the safety of the passengers while his mate is away."

The mention of the motorman made her companion turn around to see where that person was stationed, and he was somewhat surprised to find that he had impressed two horses belonging to another truckman and, with the combined teams, was making a vigorous effort to pull the obstruction from the track. This strenuous proceeding alarmed the man, and he turned quickly to the girl.

"Letty, I want you to listen!" he cried. "This might be the only chance I will get to explain."

The noise outside increased.

"Go ahead!" screamed the driver, as the four horses strained and struggled. "Keep it up! Keep it up!"

"Letty!" The man seized both hands now and tried to turn her face toward him. "I want to tell you"—

"Use the whip!" yelled the driver. His shrill shriek ripped through the car and drowned the man's voice.

The girl turned toward the window, and the fur boa on her shoulders shook suspiciously. The man had a dim idea that she was laughing.

"Letty!" The man was desperate. "I—I love you."

A loud yell of triumph came from the driver, and a merry peal of laughter from the girl helped the echoes as they buzzed around the car. The noise was tremendous. The driver's yells were deafening, and the shouts of the motorman and the truckman told the man that the work of removing the obstruction was nearly finished. He took one hasty glance at the moving truck and, springing back, quickly seized the laughing girl in his arms.

"There!" he cried triumphantly as he kissed the blushing face. "And there! And there again!" And over the girl's muffled laughter and protests came a victorious cheer from the motorman and the two truck drivers, informing the two passengers that the truck was clear at last.

Three minutes afterward the conductor kicked the snow from his boots and gave the "Go ahead" signal to the elated motorman, and the car moved off. As they passed the disabled truck the man pointed to the name painted in red letters on its side, and the girl read, "John Love, Truckman."

"One of Dan Cupid's aliases," whispered her companion. And the blush on her face made the beauty loving conductor stare at her for the rest of the journey to the infinite delight of the man.

The Fife.

It is said by some that we owe the fife—"ear piercing," as Shakespeare calls it—to the Swiss, and Sir James Turner, who busied himself in writing on military matters, names it the "Allemaine whistle." In France it was employed at least as early as 1534, in which year it was ordered by Francis I. that each band of 1,000 men was to have four drums and two fifes.

A few years later in England we find "drommes and ffyffes" included in the muster of London citizens. Shakespeare refers to the musician, not the instrument, when he speaks in "The Merchant of Venice" of "the vile squealing of the wry necked fife." An old writer observes, indeed, that a "fyfe is a wry neckt musician, for he looks away from his instrument." About the reign of James II. the fife lost its popularity for a time. Sir James Turner observing, "With us any captain may keep a fifer in his company and maintain him, too, for no pay is allowed him, perhaps just as much as he deserveth."—Chambers' Journal.

Wanted Browning.

He was evidently a German, and his speech didn't belie the fact. He caught the attention of the librarian.

"Blease, I vant a book," he said.

"What book?" she asked.

"Boetry," he replied.

"Who is the author?"

He looked troubled.

"Blease, I haf forgot it," he said, "but his name begins mit 'P.'"

"Pee?" asked the obliging girl.

"Not Bee," he answered.

"Pope?"

"Not Pope."

His face brightened up.

"He is der feller dot wrotit 'In a Paleony,'" he said.

"Why, that was Browning."

"Sure, Prowning," he repeated. "I couldn't remember, but I knew dot it commenced mit a 'P.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Cave Full of Bones.

In the Isle of Egg, one of the Hebrides, is a cave into which one can hardly creep on hands and knees. Inside it widens enormously and runs down to the terrific depth of 250 feet. To this day the bottom is strewn thick with human bones, the relics of the whole clan of Macdonalds, over 200 in number, who were miserably suffocated by the Macleods from the island of Skye. This tragedy is supposed to have occurred in the thirteenth century.

Spring Sales in Adams County-1911

Spring sales to be successful must have bidders who want the goods sold. Bidders go to sales because of information in hand of stock or property to be sold that they want. The busines of every farmer having a sale is to give information to bidders of what is to be sold so as to induce them to come to sale. In other words every sale should be thoroughly advertised to bring the bidders and make a good sale. The COMPILER has been considered the best medium in the county for the advertisment of spring sales. Send or bring in your sale lists to the COMPILER and make sure that the thousands who read the COMPILER will have the opportunity of knowing what you have to sell and going to your sale for the advertised goods.

WHITE COAL IN ADAMS CO.

There is an abundance of White Coal in Adams County. It does not lie away under the surface of the ground to be extracted at a large outlay. Much of it is right at hand waiting use. White Coal is the horse power in our streams that will generate electricity to light and heat homes, run machinery and for the many uses by which power serves mankind. Wherever there is a stream that can be made to turn turbine wheels there is White Coal.

Dr. N. S. Schaeffer comes to our County and tells of the great waste going on at the present time, how things that are not used are now so much waste. He tells of the work of the city of St. Louis now going on in the construction of a dam across the Mississippi that is going to give power enough to run the machinery of that city, operate its cars, light its houses and perhaps heat them. We listen to these talks and exclaim wonderful, though it was some wonder of the world existing in a faraway place and we don't stop long enough to see whether there is'nt a message for us.

The fact however is absolutely true that there is enough White Coal going to waste to light every town in the County, and run all our industries. Thousands upon thousands of horse power could be developed from our streams It would not be a herculean task for our people to associate themselves into companies and develop the same. There are boroughs in the County where water could be harnessed and made to light the streets and there are many farms with streams small enough to be jumped across that could develop enough power to light the house and barn of the farmer and give him power to do the work about the premises now done by horse or human power.

The installation of the necessary dam and machinery is not prohibitive. There are places in this country but not in this county where White Coal is now generating electricity, which is sold at a profit of one fifth and one sixth the price that must be asked for electricity generated from the power of steam.

Our people should take up this question before many available sites along our streams are bought by outside capital. There are those who believe the railroads will acquire sites along the streams of the country through which they pass and build plants from which the power will be obtained to operate the railroads.

But before this service is extracted from White Coal, the people of the Country should have the service of this element converted into light, heat and power. Don't let us wait until some bold spirit from the outside comes in and develops our resources now going to waste. Let the enterprising men of our respective communities take up this question. Let them ascertain the cost of harnessing of our streams with dams and the installing of machinery to generate electricity from the power in the stream. Let them go into the cost of maintenance and the demand in their respective communities for the power and whether it would not pay big to go into the White Coal business. If it will pay big we hope to see our own people get the profits and not those on the outside to whom tribute would have to be paid for the demonstration of showing our people how to make money out of the White Coal now going to waste.

Economical Making of Dirt Roads.

Among the speakers in the special train over the State of Pennsylvania during February on the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and arousing the people on the question of roads, was Walter B. Thompson, the division engineer of the Elmira Division of the Pennsylvania R. R., and he spoke on the economical making of dirt roads by the drag built at an expense of $3 to $5. Among other things he said in his address: "In May the sun and wind has dried up the roads, but ruts and breakers exist. In June the supervisor in many places uses a road scraper, and later a gang of men will turn up the sod and throw the stones in the gutter. In the latter way the road taxes are worked out. Before the taxes are worked out two tons could be hauled, afterwards one and a half tons. About fair time, September, the roads are bad again if it should rain. Lack of surface drainage when the roads freeze in winter fill the ruts and holes in the road with ice. During sixty days of the winter season an empty wagon is a load, until road taxes are being worked out again. The remedy for this is to help the supervisor along by getting a money tax, so the work of road building and repairing will be carried on in a business way. Roads repaired with a drag are the most economical, and make substantial roads. Pennsylvania has spent nine million dollars on state roads. Work the dirt roads properly and see whether you get it to carry as heavy loads as a state road. Surface drainage is the main remedy for good roads. The oftener a mud hole in a street is driven into by a wagon the deeper it becomes, and for that reason a perfect drainage will prevent mud holes. I see no reason why a man who works out a road tax should not teach out his school tax. Roads that have been dragged the past ten years have a surface like cement. The road scraper pulverizes the dirt, and it is thus blown away, and every time it is used it tears up the work done by it the year before. The United States department at Washington estimates the cost of hauling by a farmer to be twenty-five cents a mile. This can be cut in half by using a drag, and every farmer can build one at a cost of from $3 to $5 When a stone road is once built, then the expense begins. There are, however, some places where stone roads must be constructed where exceptional heavy hauling is done."

An Incident in Life of Gen. Meade

As a member of the staff of General George G. Meade, I came to know full well that at times, in fact a great deal of the time, he displayed a most peppery temper to all with whom he came in contact so that many of the generals of the Army of the Potomac did not personally like their superior. once said to me the late General George H. Sharpe who, after the war, was more or less prominent for years in national politics in the east. But I am going to tell you a little incident that will give you some insight of the true Meade that lay underneath the coat of irritation that he so often wore.

After the army of the Potomac had taken up winter quarters along the banks of the James river in the latter part of 1864, there appeared at headquarters one day two Englishmen who were recognized authorities in British military circles. They carried a letter from Lord Lyons, then British minister at Washington. In it the minister explained that its bearers were friends of his, that they had come to this country for the special purpose of studying the movements of the army of the Potomac and that he—Lord Lyons—would take it as a high personal favor if such assistance, as was reasonable and proper, should be given them in their study.

General Grant received the two strangers very courteously, told them that he would be glad to do all that he could for them and then, after thinking a moment or two turned to me.

General Sharpe, he asked quietly, is there any general at hand who is on good terms with General Meade.

I replied that no one could be on better terms than myself. At that Grant's face showed the inward relief he undoubtedly felt. Then he said, I wish you would escort these gentlemen to General Meade's headquarters, and request him, for me to give them such assistance as lies within power.

Arrived at General Meade's headquarters I stopped the Englishmen so that I might prepare General Meade for their reception. Then entered his tent and found him as I was afraid that I might, in a very irritable mood. Something—possibly something most trivial had gone wrong and when I told him what my errand was he let loose and swore like a trooper. But at last he said: General Sharpe' bring your friends to me in about fifteen minutes, I will receive them then.

Promptly at the specified time I entered General Meade's tent with the two visitors and what do you suppose I saw? General Meade garbed immaculately from head to foot in full dress uniform, never handsome in appearence, and the acme of dignified and impressive presence. And when I introduced the Englishmen he received them with the utmost graciousness and put them at their ease at once. And this was the same man who had been swayed by passion a short quarter of an hour before.

Well, for nearly an hour General Meade held those Englishmen inthralled while he discoursed on the strategy of the campaign. His courtesy, his thoughtfulness, his simplicity, his modesty, his patience at questions, completely captivated them and when finally the interview was over and I rode away with them they could not sound his praises loud enough. You see he gave these two men a glimpse of the General George G. Meade that not many men of the Army of the Potomac got. But we of his staff knew right along that he had a tender heart, and our only regret was that, against his own good, he so often hid it behind those outbursts of temper famous in the personal history of our Civil War.

Fun Between Farmer and Crows

The New Oxford Item tells of a funny sight witnessed in Oxford township during recent snow. A farmer of that township having fun with the crows or the crows with him. He failed to get his corn husked during the fall and it yet stands on shock in the field. The ground being covered with snow an enormous flock of crows, being desperate for food, alighted upon the farmer's cornfield and began to play havoc with the corn. The farmer noticing the birds getting away with the corn, hooked a horse to his sleigh and started to drive about the field in an effort to drive away the crows, but there happened to be a large hill in the field and as he would chase them from one place they would rise, and alight on the opposite side of the hill, until at last the man was obliged to give up in disgust and leave the birds feed at will.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified so a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine on KNOWN COMPOSITION and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

ADAMS CO. CASES APPEALED TO THE APPELLATE COURTS TO BE HEARD AT EARLY DATE

Something of the Working of an Appellate Court—U. S. Supreme Court.

As this is the season of year in which cases from Adams County are heard by the Supreme and Superior Courts, a glimpse of the work of an appellate Court will be of interest to the people.

The three cases to be heard are the following:

On Monday, Feb. 27 the case of H. W. Taylor vs Jacob E. Sharetts came up in the Supreme Court at Philadelphia and that Court will at an early date hand down a decision determining which of the parties is entitled to the office of Director of Poor

On Monday, March 13 two cases will be argued before the Superior Court at Harrisburg. One case is that of U. L. Glatfelter vs Mendels Bros. in which the plaintiff at January Court 1910 recovered judgment against defendants for $346.70, for certain apparatus in his Shirt factory in East Berlin which plaintiff claimed he did not sell the defendants when he sold them the Machinery.

The second case is in estate of Henry Shultz, dec'd, and is a most interesting case. The balance in an estate had been distributed to collateral heirs by an auditor and the actual distribution made when a son of the deceased by a divorced mother was discovered and the son claimed the estate, while the administrator claimed protection having paid it out under decree of court.

The work of the appellate Courts can be seen in the following description of the work of the United States,

On Saturday evening each justice receives from the chief justice an envelope containing the names of the cases the chief justice has decided to allow the justice to write the opinions on, and the chief justice also notifies the justices of the hour of the conferences on Monday morning. The conferences are usually held in the conference room under locked doors. The chief justice presides, and cases are taken up or postponed according to the wishes of the justice or their readiness to consider them. Each justice is furnished with a lock book, in which he may enter the details of a case, the record of the vote on conference and the final disposition. On a case being assigned by the chief justice to a justice to write the opinion of the court the opinion when written must be agreeable to the justices. If not the dissatisfied justice will promptly write a dissenting opinion. In some instances four of the justices have each written a dissenting opinion, but the usual custom is for one to write it and announce that the others concur.

Before a case is reached for argument the justices familiarize themselves with its records and briefs, and when one is directed to write the opinion he makes a study of the case, long or short, as its gravity demands. This may take a few days or months. The opinion is dictated, and after being typewritten it is corrected, boiled down and revised; another copy is then made, further revised and sent to the printer. In order that the compositors who set the type may not know the decision of the case the foreman sets up the last few lines of the opinion, locks them in a safe, and after the opinion is set up he adds them to it, takes two proofs and forwards them under lock and key to the justice. It is again read and revised and sometimes completely altered and returned to the printer, corrected by the latter and nine revises sent to the justice.

If the opinion is now satisfactory to the justice a copy is mailed to each member of the court. These are returned to the justice with the notations of the justices, and the opinion is revised or changed, if need be, to conform to thier views. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the majority opinion holds it until the dissent is completed.

Then on some Monday, the court being in session, the justice announces an opinion in the case, giving its number and title, and then proceeds to read it at length to the dozen people who may be present. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the dissent reads it and announces the names of the justices who concur with him. Afterward the official reporter of the court sends a verified copy of the opinion to the publishers of the United States supreme court reports, and the case finally becomes one of thousands in the law libraries to be read and reread if of moment or to be forgotten if mere detail.

A New Gettysburg Picture.

A house painter of Germantown recently astonished his neighbors by blossoming out as an artist and one of his pictures recently publicly exhibited has excited considerable comment. Such was the story told in a recent issue of the Philadelphia "Record" and it was added that the artist, Joseph Relinger, is a native of Alsace, and has been working for years, devoting his day labor to house painting and frescoing and his nights and spare time to picture painting, and his home contains over 100 pictures he has painted. One of the largest and best pictures of which mention is made is a scene representing the Battle of Gettysburg.

SEVERAL children of Abbottstown who had the scarlet fever are convelescing and believed to be out of danger.

Paper Milk Bottles.

The Universal Paper Bottle Company of New York City has a machine that manufactures a paper milk bottle and it is said by those who claim to be in a position to know that "by the paper bottles the dairyman can avoid the heavy cost of glass bottles, the large freight charges, the liability of breakage, the daily washing of bottles, the heavy hauling of glass bottles and their collecting of empty bottles. There is no bother with calling for empty bottles. There will be none to call for. The housewives will be instructed to throw away their paper bottles when they are empty. They can be used for fuel, in fact. There will be no such thing as glass bottles to stand around to collect dirt and germs; there will be no stealing of milk bottles and selling them back to the milk dealers with their load of filth and disease germs; there will be no such thing as using a bottle which had been used by other families many times, with the consequent danger of infection. There will be no littering of doorsteps with unsightly glass bottles every morning, and there will be no agony of trying to keep track of empty bottles by the dairyman."

Fell in Odd Way.

William Winand of New Oxford employed at the Livingston Shoe factory on leaving for his home one evening last week and crossing the railroad tract stepped on an object so that his foot was turned and he fell, his foot becoming bent over the rail. He was assisted to his home and his physician discovered the ligaments of the foot badly torn and sprained.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Gettysburg Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Gettysburg testimony:

Mrs. J. Warren Gilbert, 130 W. Middle Street, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Since I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago, two of my relatives have taken them and have been greatly benefited. I suffered terribly from backaches headaches and dizzy spells and I knew that I had kidney complaint. Nothing relieved me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the People's Drug Store. I am grateful for the benefit that they have brought and shall always recommend them."

WHITE COAL IN ADAMS CO.

There is an abundance of White Coal in Adams County. It does not lie away under the surface of the ground to be extracted at a large outlay. Much of it is right at hand waiting use. White Coal is the horse power in our streams that will generate electricity to light and heat homes, run machinery and for the many uses by which power serves mankind. Wherever there is a stream that can be made to turn turbine wheels there is White Coal.

Dr. N. S. Schaeffer comes to our County and tells of the great waste going on at the present time, how things that are not used are now so much waste. He tells of the work of the city of St. Louis now going on in the construction of a dam across the Mississippi that is going to give power enough to run the machinery of that city, operate its cars, light its houses and perhaps heat them. We listen to these talks and exclaim wonderful, though it was some wonder of the

Spring sales to be successful must have bidders who want the goods sold. Bidders go to sales because of information in hand of stock or property to be sold that they want. The business of every farmer having a sale is to give information to bidders of what is to be sold so as to induce them to come to sale. In other words every sale should be thoroughly advertised to bring the bidders and make a good sale. The COMPILER has been considered the best medium in the county for the advertisement of spring sales. Send or bring in your sale lists to the COMPILER and make sure that the thousands who read the COMPILER will have the opportunity of knowing what you have to sell and going to your sale for the advertised goods.

CUPID'S COAL TRUCK

Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.

The car came to an abrupt stop, and the conductor stretched his neck in a reckless manner as he looked for the cause.

"Coal truck on the blink with a broken axle," he cried disgustedly, "an' now I got to chase through the snow to phone the 'mergency van." He walked through the car to acquaint the motorman of his heroic intention and, after buttoning his jacket, set off up the snow covered road in search of a telephone.

The motorman took the opportunity to stretch his legs by walking around the disabled vehicle. When he stepped from the car the two passengers sighed wearily and the man moved closer to his companion.

"Well, I'm glad that conductor has gone," he remarked. "He stared at us till my conscience suggested I had given him a bad coin."

The fur wrapped girl beside him laughed merrily.

"'Tis a habit of conductors," she murmured. "I have noticed them before."

"I will pardon him," said the man. "He is but mortal, and I am pleased to find that his mercenary occupation has not destroyed his love of the beautiful."

The girl smiled indulgently, but remained silent. Meanwhile the motorman had entered into a discussion with the truck driver as to the best method of removing the damaged vehicle.

"Letty!" The man's voice interrupted a day dream and the girl started.

"Do you know I am desperately in love?"

The big blue eyes surveyed him critically.

"No; I do not," she said emphatically. "When a man is in love he can never disguise the fact."

"You are thinking of calf love," he remarked, "the kind that bubbles over and spoils its owner's appetite, but solid, healthy man's love"—

"It is all the same," she interrupted; "concealment is impossible. Now, Mr. Dorrington is in love, and a child can detect the symptoms."

"Dorrington!" The man's voice expressed his surprise. "Do you mean old Dorrington?"

The slightest puckering round the corners of the little mouth showed where a smile tried hard to establish a footing.

"When Mr. Dorrington called yesterday," continued the girl, "I watched him closely while he was speaking to mother"—

"Pardon me!" The man's tone was masterful, and the girl stopped. "Is Dorrington—old Dorrington—in love with your mother?"

The smile made another valiant effort to disturb the serenity of the girl's face, but retired discomfited.

"I do not think so," she said quietly. "If he is, the feeling is not reciprocated, as mother always leaves me to entertain him when he calls."

The man winced.

"I am anxious about him"—he tried to hide the effect produced by her thrust—"Dorry is not young, you know, and love, like measles, plays the mischief with elderly people."

The hovering smile flashed triumphantly across the girl's blushing face.

"Seriously, Letty," her companion continued, "Dorrington is old! I remember him twenty-five years ago, when he chased me away from a pond near your mother's house. God bless my heart, girl"—his tone changed to one expressing blank astonishment—"I am getting old too!"

The girl turned, and the blue eyes looked carefully over the man's brown face, noting the length and depth of every wrinkle that marked it.

"You are getting old, Jack."

"I know it," he cried, "and here am I in a sidetracked car doing nothing, while time pursues me remorselessly."

Evidently thinking anything preferable to inaction, he started out to capture one of the little gloved hands of his companion, and after she had vainly tried to defeat his intentions he clasped it between his own two and seemed immensely pleased at the feat.

"Dear me," she sighed. "I wish that conductor would come back."

"He cannot shift us!" The man was defiant, and the girl blushed as she noticed his restlessness.

"No, but he can stare at you," she cried irritably, "and your actions since he departed prove that the stare was effective."

"But, Letty," he said, "what a terrible thing it is to look back on thirty-five wasted years, thirty-five autumns, thirty-five springs and the same number of winters and summers, all barren and useless." He shuddered and moved closer.

"Oh, Jack," she murmured, "do look and see if he is coming."

He stood up, still holding the little hand, and carefully scanned the white road. "He is not coming!" he cried gleefully. "He will have to walk a mile—a mile there and a mile back."

"You have no pity!" exclaimed the girl. She made an attempt to release the imprisoned hand as she spoke, but the man's grip tightened. "How would you like it, sir, if you had to walk two miles in the snow because a silly old coal truck collapsed on the track?"

"It is not a silly old coal truck," said the man, dropping back into his seat. "It is a wonderful, glorious, rainbow tinted instrument of—of"—

"Don't say Providence," she interrupted.

"No; of Dan Cupid! Didn't I tell you, Letty, that I adore"—

"The coal truck," she interrupted again. "You certainly used enough adjectives to give one that impression."

"And I do!" he cried defiantly. "I adore the horses, the axle and every other part that helped toward the breaking down because—do you know why, Letty?"

"Because it made the poor conductor tramp two miles in the snow," she answered.

The man was annoyed.

"Confound the conductor!" he cried.

"I wish he'd come back," she said. "If he does not return soon I will call upon the motorman. I suppose he is responsible for the safety of the passengers while his mate is away."

The mention of the motorman made her companion turn around to see where that person was stationed, and he was somewhat surprised to find that he had impressed two horses belonging to another truckman and, with the combined teams, was making a vigorous effort to pull the obstruction from the track. This strenuous proceeding alarmed the man, and he turned quickly to the girl.

"Letty, I want you to listen!" he cried. "This might be the only chance I will get to explain."

The noise outside increased.

"Go ahead!" screamed the driver, as the four horses strained and struggled. "Keep it up! Keep it up!"

"Letty!" The man seized both hands now and tried to turn her face toward him. "I want to tell you"—

"Use the whip!" yelled the driver. His shrill shriek ripped through the car and drowned the man's voice.

The girl turned toward the window, and the fur boa on her shoulders shook suspiciously. The man had a dim idea that she was laughing.

"Letty!" The man was desperate. "I—I love you."

A loud yell of triumph came from the driver, and a merry peal of laughter from the girl helped the echoes as they buzzed around the car. The noise was tremendous. The driver's yells were deafening, and the shouts of the motorman and the truckman told the man that the work of removing the obstruction was nearly finished. He took one hasty glance at the moving truck and, springing back, quickly seized the laughing girl in his arms.

"There!" he cried triumphantly as he kissed the blushing face. "And there! And there again!" And over the girl's muffled laughter and protests came a victorious cheer from the motorman and the two truck drivers, informing the two passengers that the truck was clear at last.

Three minutes afterward the conductor kicked the snow from his boots and gave the "Go ahead" signal to the elated motorman, and the car moved off. As they passed the disabled truck the man pointed to the name painted in red letters on its side, and the girl read, "John Love, Truckman."

"One of Dan Cupid's aliases," whispered her companion. And the blush on her face made the beauty loving conductor stare at her for the rest of the journey to the infinite delight of the man.

The Fife.

It is said by some that we owe the fife—"ear piercing," as Shakespeare calls it—to the Swiss, and Sir James Turner, who busied himself in writing on military matters, names it the "Allemaine whistle." In France it was employed at least as early as 1534, in which year it was ordered by Francis I. that each band of 1,000 men was to have four drums and two fifes.

A few years later in England we find "drommes and ffyffes" included in the muster of London citizens. Shakespeare refers to the musician, not the instrument, when he speaks in "The Merchant of Venice" of "the vile squealing of the wry necked fife." An old writer observes, indeed, that a "fyfe is a wry neckt musician, for he looks away from his instrument." About the reign of James II. the fife lost its popularity for a time. Sir James Turner observing, "With us any captain may keep a fifer in his company and maintain him, too, for no pay is allowed him, perhaps just as much as he deserveth."—Chambers' Journal.

Wanted Browning.

He was evidently a German, and his speech didn't belie the fact. He caught the attention of the librarian.

"Blease, I vant a book," he said.

"What book?" she asked.

"Boetry," he replied.

"Who is the author?"

He looked troubled.

"Blease, I haf forgot it," he said, "but his name begins mit 'P.'"

"Poe?" asked the obliging girl.

"Not Boe," he answered.

"Pope?"

"Not Bope."

His face brightened up.

"He is der feller dot wrotit 'In a Palcony,'" he said.

"Why, that was Browning."

"Sure, Browning," he repeated. "I couldn't remember, but I knew dot it gommenced mit a 'P.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Cave Full of Bones.

In the Isle of Egg, one of the Hebrides, is a cave into which one can hardly creep on hands and knees. Inside it widens enormously and runs down to the terrific depth of 250 feet. To this day the bottom is strewn thick with human bones, the relics of the whole clan of Macdonalds, over 200 in number, who were miserably suffocated by the Macleods from the island of Skye. This tragedy is supposed to have occurred in the thirteenth century.

Lecture in Church of the Brethren.

Rev. Virgil C. Flnwell, of Elgin, Illinois, addressed a splendid audience at the church of the Brethren last Tuesday evening, taking for his subject "The Past, Present and Future of the Brethren Publishing Interests."

He began by calling attention to the splendid record of Eld. Christopher Sower, who began German printing at Germantown, Pa., in 1738, thus becoming the first publisher for the church. In 1764 he founded the "Religious Magazine" a German periodical that antedates any religious publications in America.

The Sower plant was destroyed by the British in 1777 and for the next three quarters of a century the Brethren did not take an active interest literary and educational work.

"In 1851, Eld. Henry Kurtz, an ex-Lutheran minister of culture and literary attainments, started the second church publication, which has grown until to-day "Our Church Organ," The Gospel Messenger, has a subscription list reaching nearly every state and country on the globe." We now produce eight Sunday school and missionary periodicals besides thousands of books, bibles, etc., with a net profit of $17,000 annually which is devoted to mission work."

"Our present publishing house equipment is worth a little over $280,000, owned and controlled by the denomination, each member being entitled to one share of stock." The lecture was made quite interesting by the use of various charts and drawing.
